

Modern Playbill

By Tyrone Ghaswala

After searching through the bed upstairs, you pounce on the envelope, ripping it open in exhaustion. There can't be much more, can there? You bite the bullet and push on; after all, these puzzles won't solve themselves.

You've done his puzzles before, but they haven't been like this. You think that something is different this time, but just as you begin to let your imagination run away, you are overwhelmed by a feeling of urgency and pull yourself back to the present.

You scan through the mysterious list in your hands. The quotes seem awfully familiar, but you can't quite put your finger on where you've seen them before. With a deep breath you take a closer look.

6 – Even you, Brutus?

5 – Where the hell are you? Ignore your dad and change your last name already!

3 – Those damn lawyers, first let's kill them all!

3 – Even the most humble person will get pissed off if you step on them.

4 – G'night. Leaving you is so sad. Maybe I'll keep saying "good night" over and over until the sun rises.

1 – Everything that's shiny isn't necessarily valuable.

1 – If you think I'm a wasp, you better watch out for my sting!

4 – Jesus, if only my horse ran as fast as you talk!

2 – The truth has a soft boobie.

1 – If we called flowers faeces, would they smell like shit?

4 – Goddamn it, don't make me play a woman, I've got facial hair!

4 – Oh god Yorick! We were close friends before he was this skull, Horatio.

5 – You can question that the stars are flaming balls of gas, that the sun moves, or even that truth is a lie. But never ever question my love for you.

6 – Two milk and two sugars, work and problems. Flames and broth!

1 – Don't be afraid of being awesome: Sometimes you're born awesome, or you gain awesomeness, or you have awesomeness forced on you.

5 – Should I or shouldn't I? Hmmm, this is a toughie.

8 – You won't get anything unless you say something. Try again!
